“ I had the privilege of meeting Terry, (I had met him once or twice prior but very briefly) on October 31st, 2019. My spouse, myself, and our son, visited Terry and Jane in order to show them Dom's homemade halloween costume. Little did Terry know, his seeing Dom was a very monumentous occasion because Dom has autism and is very reserved. He (Dom) was proud to "show-off" his costume. Anyway, after Jane and my spouse, (Mike - helper) brought Terry to the living room I looked at him and noticed the first thing I tend to notice in people; his eyes - they were beautiful. The kind of beautiful that you know belongs to a really good soul. I said to him, "You have beautiful eyes!" His response, "I know!" I absolutely loved that moment, my only moment, with him. Couldn't have been any better! Rest in Peace Dear man! Mandy Lager
